ANNOUNCEMENTS FROM THE CLINIC

Inspirational Thoughts & Focus for January

"In a sense, everything that happens to me is a gift from God. I may resent disappointments, rebel against a series of misfortunes which I regard as unmerited punishment. Yet in time I may come to understand that these can be considered gifts of enlightenment. They teach me that many of my "punishments" are self-inflicted. In some way unfathomable to my human intelligence, my suffering could be the consequence of my own attitudes, actions or neglects. This perspective to my "problem" can lift my thinking to a level at which I can gain a new point of view and find solutions I never dreamed were possible.

All of us tend to rebel against the unhappiness in our lives; we try to understand; we resent what we cannot understand. Rebelliousness will only heap one frustration on another until we learn to get out from under, let go and let God take a hand in our affairs."

– From One Day At A Time In Al-Anon p125.

We often ask God "why?" Even if He gave us the answer(s)/reason(s), we wouldn't understand it anyway. So take heart and know God is with you, especially when it doesn't feel like it.
